

ABSTRACT

A two-stage amplifier that includes a first stage and a second stage and a first component and a second component coupled in series between the first and second stages. The first component is selected to provide AC decoupling of the first and second stages and the second component is selected to provide for the stability of the amplifier while avoiding excessive power dissipation and/or negative impact on overall gain.